

The Color Story

What each color carries for the work it names

This page records what each color represents of the work it is attached to, so the palette is used with intention and inherited with its reasons.

THE PARENT PALETTE

Luminara Gold #F4BE3B

Master-brand emphasis and luminous highlight. A saturated warm gold, bright enough to glow against midnight and too light to carry text on ivory, which is exactly its job: one prominent gold element on every surface, the single thread that makes many documents one body of work.

Midnight Blue #030F58

Primary structure, depth, and contrast. The darkest value in the system and the ground the gold shines against: where the institute needs ink-weight authority, in decks, grounds, and print, midnight carries it.

Royal Blue #0E398F

The working blue. Labels, headers, links, and interface text: cool enough for rigor, saturated enough to stay alive at small sizes. The register in which the institute does its everyday speaking.

Cerulean Light #0A8CCB

The innovation accent. A bright, high-energy blue held in reserve for new signal, and used sparingly so that when it appears, it means something changed.

Sunrise Orange #F37A04

Human warmth and activation. The palette's highest-energy warm, assigned to the surfaces that speak to people most directly and always balanced by the blues that carry the thinking.

Deep Gold Bronze #A86C17

Gold at a working register. The value of the bright gold lowered until it can speak all day, carrying section headings, eyebrows, and long-form structure in the same lineage at an indoor voice.

THE DIVISION COLORS

■ Research • Inquiry Sienna #B34E2B

Research works by patience: evidence, evaluation, measurement, validation. Its sienna is the most bodily hue in the palette, warm light at skin temperature, drawn with the lens, the waveform, and measured light.

■ Technology, AI & Information Systems • Interface Blue #075AA6

This division builds the instruments: XR, AI, biosensing, spatial computing, and the Super Cockpit platform. Its blue is the sharpest in the family, precise and screen-native. The navigation grid and concentric interface rings are its imagery. Its hue was made for readouts that must be trusted at a glance.

■ Experience Architecture • Embodied Teal #154D5C

Experience Architecture builds what a person can inhabit. Its teal is deep and low in saturation, a value that holds steady under long attention, drawn with the portal and the layered landscape.

■ Lumina Lingua • Meaning Violet #8A79A9

Lumina Lingua works on language, symbol, and shared meaning. Violet sits at the edge of the visible spectrum, neither warm nor cool, drawn with interwoven glyphs and light emerging from text, at home with a division building words for what speech cannot yet say.

■ The Light School • Growth Amber #D2A35E

The Light School teaches: mentorship, guided experience, learners moving toward a star. Its amber holds harvest warmth, and its sign is the seedling in a halo. Becoming is the school's whole subject.

■ Community Service • Service Green #8A9D68

Community Service is light carried by hand into the world: applied service, humanitarian work, the seed becoming a gift. Its green is an organic mid-tone. By ruling it is never worn alone; wrapped in Luminara Gold and ivory, the warmth reads as harvest rather than heat.

THE BRIDGE GROUP COLORS

■ Governance • Stewardship Olive #496129

Governance keeps the mission continuous through integrity, ethics, and policy. Its signs are the shield, the compass, and the protected lantern. Beside it, gold reads as something guarded rather than displayed.

■ Finance & Fundraising · Foundation Teal #366067

This group builds the reservoir: philanthropy, grants, sponsorship, the seed becoming a tree.

■ Internal Communications · Radiant Violet #60508D

Internal Communications keeps the community informed and remembered. The radiating signal, the open book, and light waves are its imagery.

■ Branding & Outreach · Beacon Brick #8F4239

Branding & Outreach carries the story outward.

THE RULE THAT BINDS THEM

The system carries one binding law: each subdivision color appears with one Luminara Gold element and with Midnight Blue or ivory for contrast, so the family differentiates without fragmenting the master brand. No meaning rides on color alone; whatever a color says is also said in a word, a shape, or a pattern, so the story stays legible to every kind of eye.

Palette and subdivision color system by Drew Stone. Assignments recorded in the Branding Style Sheet.