

Chair of the Board

Authority: Bylaws Sections 6.1, 6.5 · Resolution 3 of the organizational meeting · RCW 24.03A.585, .590

PURPOSE

The Chair leads the board's work: convening it, focusing it, and connecting it to the corporation's leadership. While the office of President is vacant, the Chair also performs the president's statutory functions, so the corporation always has a presiding executive function on the face of its record.

RESPONSIBILITIES

- Preside at meetings of the board; set agendas with the Secretary and officers.
- Serve as liaison between the board and executive leadership.
- Perform the president's statutory functions while that office remains vacant, per Resolution 3.
- Sign adopted instruments where the bylaws or a resolution call for the Chair's signature.
- Verify the quarterly records deposit under the Document Retention and Destruction Policy.

LIMITS

The Chair must be a director, exercises no unilateral authority over the corporation except as the board authorizes, may not simultaneously serve as Secretary, and votes as one director among equals.
